Victims

Palestinian refugee and ISIS fighter, Omar al-Sarhan Abu Alaa, has died, while during clashes with the opposition groups which targeted ISIS's locations in Yilda. Abu Alaa al-Sarhan is brother to Abu Muhammad al-Sarhan, a leader in ISIS and resident of Al-Orouba Street in Yarmouk refugee camp.

Latest Developments:

Sources on the field in Yarmouk camp confirmed the death of four ISIS militants, after their locations were targeted by "Jaysh AlIslam", one of the armed opposition groups in southern Damascus.

"Jaysh AlIslam" announced that its members had spotted and targeted ISIS's positions on the front of al-Zein neighborhood, on the outskirts of "Al Hajar AL Aswad" Neighborhood adjacent to the Yarmouk refugee camp. The clashes between the two sides was very violent and weapons such as mortars were used.

Areas controlled by "Tahrir al-Sham", were bombed yesterday by the Syrian regime forces and their supporting groups, using mortars. Western Yarmouk Camp was hit, causing destruction to the residents' homes.

The Action Group's correspondent in rural Damascus stated that Syrian security members imposed entry cards on all who want to return to the area of Sabina and its camp. He added that the families are requested to bring their family book, as well as proof of their home's ownership, in order to create identification cards as well as registration numbers for them.

The reconciliation committee and the Syrian security committees in the region forced each family head to bring the identification cards of their relatives. Males were required to attend, while women were not.

According to the reconciliation committee, 400 families received the entry cards and returned to their homes in al-Sabinah.

A number of al-Sabinah camp residents considered this a trap made by the Syrian government, to arrest those wanted by the security and those who haven't enrolled in the Palestinian Liberation Army.

Palestinian activists blamed the Syrian security and its supporting groups, for preparing rooms at the entrance of al-Sabinah refugee camp, to arrest the wanted residents as they return to the camp. They pointed out that a security check has been made at the main entrance of the camp to supervise the entry of the people.

Moving to the south, The Charitable association for Palestine collaborated with several organizations to distribute sacrificial meat to the Palestinian families in the western and eastern countryside of Daraa. 3400 people benefited from this donation, in towns including Al-Muzayrib and Mahjriha - Zezun and Mahjriha - Fawwar Tal Shihab - Ajmi - Tseil - Sidon - Kahil - Bosra and Daraa camp

The Charitable association for Palestine and the Charitable association for Palestinian relief, in south Damascus also distributed meat to those who have been displaced from the Yarmouk refugee camp, and moved to the towns of Yilda, Babil and Beit Samh.
