Statistics

The AGPS documented statistics indicate that bombing is first reason that led to death of the Palestinian refugees in Syria, as it resulted in (1003) victim, while armed clashes are the second reason, as it resulted in (601) victims. Meanwhile, torture to death in the Syrian prisons comes at the third place, where the AGPS documented (385) names of Palestinian refugees who died under torture in the prisons of the Syrian regime.

The total number of Palestinian victims, that was documented by the AGPS by name, place, and reason of death, has reached (2846) victims.

Recent Updates

Number of explosive barrels targeted the surrounding areas and farms of Khan Al Shieh camp in Damascus suburb, coincided with Syrian warplanes hovering, which resulted in a state of terror among the residents for fear that the shells would hit the camp. Meanwhile, residents complain of poverty, because of the implications of violence between conflict parties in Syria, despite the repeated emphasis on the absence of any armed groups and their commitment to neutrality about what is going on.

In south of Syria, the AGPS correspondent monitored number of crises afflicting more than 8,500 Palestinian refugees in Muzeireeb compound in Deraa province, and reported that the high cost of materials has burdened the people. The price of a liter of gasoline has reached almost $ 4.5, and the liter of diesel has reached $ 2.5, which increased the economic costs of residents forcing them to live in houses that lacking to heat resources, in addition to the loss of gas for heating and cooking, and their expensive price. Under the pressure of this suffering, residents had to return to the old methods in collecting firewood and buy it, to repel a thing of the winter cold, and to help them in cooking and filling their needs of boiling food and water. Meanwhile, the price of a ton of firewood is about $ 150, while power is off all the time excluding few hours.

In the north-eastern of Syria, a state of cautious calmness prevailed Al Aedein camp in Hama, where it considered one of the calmest camps compared with the rest of the Palestinian refugee camps, which experienced continuous acts of bombing and siege. Yet, that did not prevent unemployment spread among youth, who mostly lost their jobs because of the security tension in the vicinity of the camp, which exacerbated the economic crisis experienced by the people there, in addition to the fuel crisis. The residents complain about the deterioration of living conditions increasingly, in addition to the exacerbated crises of electricity, bread, and high prices of raw material significantly. Unemployment high rate has worsening the situation, as many residents stopped working due to the ongoing conflict in Syria.

Macedonia

The AGPS received news reported that the Macedonian authorities released two Palestinian detainees in Ghazi Baba prison who were arrested on charges of illegal immigration. The sources said that the two detainees were transferred to Greece after being detained for several months without any specific charge, while about 290 refugees, including Palestinian Syrians and Syrians, are still in detention, and suffer of inhumane conditions, where they lack minimum conditions of hygiene and food, in addition to detaining them in small rooms despite of their huge numbers, while the detainees renewed their appeals for being released, and for allowing them to complete their way to Europe.

The AGPS has published a report about the Palestinian detainees who went on hunger strike to protest the poor conditions in which they live, where one of the detainees confirmed "they are being detained in small rooms as there is no warm water for showers despite the cold weather which caused respiratory and skin diseases for some children, noting that the doctor in charge of them refuses to provide any treatment, while food is limited to some butter, jam, a loaf of bread, and sometimes some canned sardines. "

The AGPS connected with a number of international human rights organizations, and provided it with as reports in English language about the conditions of detainees in Macedonia, which met interest of those human rights organizations, who promised to act to alleviate the suffering of refugees in Macedonia.
