Latest Developments

Reporting from Rural Damascus, AGPS news correspondent said Syrian government affiliates, believed to be Shiites, held sway over the homes of displaced Palestinian and Syrian civilians in AlDhiabiya area.

The Palestinian refugees slammed the Syrian government and its allied sects in Rural Damascus for relocating families of pro-regime fighters at the homes of Palestinian and Syrian civilians who have been forced out of the area some four years ago.

The refugees added that the newly-relocated families refused to leave their homes. Others have been forced to share their houses with pro-regime families, having no other place to take cover in.

On February 6, the Syrian regime troops allowed the displaced families of AlDhiabiya, housing dozens of Palestinian families, to return to their homes in the area, which was seized by the government squads by the end of 2013.

AGPS documented the death of nine Palestinians sheltered in AlDhiabiya area, in Rural Damascus, in the raging warfare.

In a related development, the Palestinian refugee Rami Ahmad Dawah, from the pro-regime Filasteen AlHurra (Free Palestine) Movement, injured in clashes between the government battalions and ISIS militias at AlShuhadaa crossroads, in blockaded Yarmouk Camp.

Meanwhile, hundreds of Palestinian refugees in Aleppo-based AlNeirab Camp have sounded distress signals over the transportation crisis rocking the area as buses, among other means of transport, suspended their services due to the acute dearth and steep costs of fuel and diesel supplies.

AlNeirab Camp has been under the full control of the regime army and their war accessories.

Civil Action Commissions

The Palestine Charity Commission distributed firewood to a number of Palestinian families and mosques in southern Damascus.

The move makes part of the Warm Winter 3 campaign initiated by the charity.

Hundreds of Palestinian families had been displaced from Yarmouk Camp after ISIS militias grabbed hold of large parts of the shelter, in cooperation with AlNusra Front.
