Recent Updates

Palestinian and Syrian activists in France launched a campaign titled as "Detainees First," to shed the light at the case of the detainees in the prisons of the Syrian regime.

The campaign came within international activities, and as a humanitarian mobilization for the freedom of the Syrian detainees. The campaign is preparing for a march at the Place de la Bastille in Paris on Saturday 11-6-2016, according to a coordinator of the campaign.

The campaign's Facebook account published that "We are not talking about only prisoners, including Women and children who are deprived of freedom, but we talk about thousands of missed and kidnaped people who are unaccounted for, as well as thousands of detainees who are systematically starving or tortured to death. All of this comes under the heading of crimes against humanity according to Article VII of the Rome treaty in 1998.

The campaign put the international community responsible of the continued detention of detainees and abductees everywhere in Syria, for the Syrian regime, which turned into an Emirate of war as the country has its seat in the United Nations and contrary to the decision of the international Security Council in the text of article 12 of resolution 2254 of 2015, according to the campaign.

The campaign also called on the international community, the international human rights organizations, the civil society, and all those who have a sense of responsibility towards the humanitarian affiliation, to unite in the face of the perpetrators of crimes against humanity in Syria.

In addition, they called for in particular Russia and America, to give effect to the principle of the responsibility to protection which was approved by the United Nations in 2005, and to work on the formation of an international working group to resolve the issue of detainees and abductees in Syria.

It is scheduled that the demonstration will raise the image of a thousand prisoners and detainees, who died under torture in a different standard format in order to draw the attention of European citizens, jurists, and politicians to the suffering of thousands of people in the Syrian cellars .

The AGPS documented 1076 Palestinian detainees in the prisons of the Syrian Regime, while the security forces are still reticent about their fate, in addition to 440 victims who died due to torture.

Heavy explosions rocked Khan Al Shieh camp in Damascus suburb after the warplanes targeted its vicinity with 42 explosive barrels, resulting in a state of panic among residents. Meanwhile, the regular Army is still closing all roads connecting the camp and the adjacent areas, which doubles the suffering of residents regarding health situation, and the provision of medication, basic materials, and baby milk.

Fighting and clashes are still ongoing in the besieged Yarmouk camp south of the capital Damascus for 43 consecutive days between ISIS and Al Nusra, which led to the death of tens of members from both sides. ISIS members sneaked at Al Thalatheen Street west of the camp and resulted in violent clashes between them and the Nusra.

This coincided with sniping operations from the hall towers and Sufian Althawri barracks controlled by Assad's forces and Palestinian groups overlooking the camp. The sniping targeted overlooking buildings on Al Thalatheen Street, while activists accused the regular army members of complicity and overlooked ISIS members while trying to sneak. Meanwhile, violent clashes broke out between the Syrian regime alongside the affiliated groups and Al Nusra Front on several axes of the camp.

This comes in light of ISIS attempts to impose new restrictions over the residents at the Yarmouk camp who are besieged at the clashes areas with Nusra Front, as they were prevented to enter food and water to the besieged areas, according to a number of residents. The regular army and the affiliated groups are still besieging the camp for 1070 days respectively, as they cut power for more than 11311 days, and water for 620 days respectively.
