Latest Developments

AGPS kept record of the death of 1,411 Palestinians sheltered in Yarmouk Camp since the outburst of deadly hostilities in Syria.

490 refugees died as a result of the heavy shelling rocking the camp; 201 died due to the blockade and medical neglect; 232 others were fatally shot; and 167 refugees were gunned down by snipers.

The list also includes 190 Palestinians who died under torture in Syrian prisons; 21 who were extra-judicially executed, and 11 shot dead by Israeli snipers. 11 others were pronounced dead after they were kidnapped. 20 Palestinians from Yarmouk died, meanwhile, of unknown reasons.

Car blasts took away the lives of 16 Palestinians while 14 refugees were assassinated in the camp. Eight others drowned at sea and five persons breathed their last following health setbacks. The Europe-bound migration route claimed the lives of five Palestinians from Yarmouk.

Two more refugees died in a building collapse while another was killed after he was squashed by starving crowds during aid distribution at Rama Square. One refugee suffocated to death. Two more were burned and another was killed with a white weapon. A Palestinian resident of Yarmouk was hit by a vehicle on his way to fetch drinking water.

Meanwhile, 1,000 Palestinian refugees from Syria in Sudan have launched cries for help over the dire conditions they have been subjected to as a result of poverty and lack of financial resources.

Low wages, high rates of unemployment, and socio-economic marginalization have made life unbearable for Palestinian refugees in Sudan, forcing dozens of refugees to beg in the streets in order to feed their starved families.

Palestinians from Syria in Sudan are not granted a refugee status and are, thus, deprived of their basic rights and subjected to costly visa fees. The lack of relief aid and humanitarian assistance has made the situation far worse.

The calamitous situation endured by the Palestinians from Syria in Sudan has forced scores of refugees to apply for UN-brokered asylum. However, their applications have been turned down. A handful of refugees embarked on small projects in an attempt to afford a living.

Dozens of families who fled to Libya, in a life-threatening journey via the Sudanese desert, attempting to head for Europe onboard the “death boats”, have fallen prey to arbitrary abductions, exploitation, and looting by human traffickers and sea gangsters.

Palestinians from Syria in Sudan have also been subjected to steep education fees. Calls have been frequently launched to integrate Palestinian children into UNICEF-run schools. Most of the Palestinians from Syria are registered with the UN's health support program.

Palestinians from Syria in Sudan are scattered across Khartoum, Khartoum Bahri (North), and Omdurman.

AlSayeda Zeinab Camp, held by the Syrian government forces and their affiliated popular committees, has been gripped with dire socio-economic conditions as a result of the high rates of unemployment. Scores of civilians have fled the camp while others have been forced to join pro-government battalions.

The Syrian government forces regained control of AlSayeda Zeinab Camp following a seven-month military operation. Heavy material damage has been inflicted on the camp.

In another development, Palestinian refugee Moad Adnan AlKhatib, sheltered in AlHussainiya Camp for Palestinian refugees, in Rif Dimashq, has been held in government prisons since December 1, 2012.

AlKhatib was a student of AlFatah AlIslami College and the Imam (preacher) of AlSahabi Zaher Mosque, in AlHussainiya Camp.
