Recent Updates

Within the International Day for Enforced Disappearance Victims, the AGPS documented (961) Palestinian Syrian prisoners in the prisons of the Syrian regime, noting that the real number may exceed 1,500 detainees, because of the fear of many detainees' families to reveal the disappearance of their children in the regime prisons.

The AGPS renewed its call for the need to disclose the Places of missed refugees in branches of the Syrian security prisons, demanding the release of all refugees who have been forcibly disappeared. The AGPS also emphasizes the need to disclose the number, names, and places of burial of prisoners who died under torture.

For his part, the AGPS monitoring and documentation team confirms that the group has documented (414) Palestinian victims who died due to torture in the prisons of the Syrian regime.

On the other hand, Syrian warplanes targeted Muzeireeb town with two explosive devices, which resulted in the death of two unknown victims, while dozens were injured, and civilians' houses were damaged.

Meanwhile, missiles and explosive barrels target the southern region of Syria, including Daraa camp and Muzeireeb compound, which claimed the lives of many Palestinian refugees. The AGPS documented 325 victims were killed in Daraa province since the start of war events.

In the same context, two mortar shells targeted Alhara Alsharqia area at the sides of Khan Dannon camp in Damascus suburb, which resulted in two injuries among children, in addition to a number of mortar shells that targeted the adjacent farms.

This comes in light of the power cut for more than 24 hours, while the regular army still close all roads linking the camp with the center of the capital, Damascus, except Zakia-Khan Al Shieh road which forced people to go through it in spite of the risks they may face.
